BONUS MARCHERS
REFUSE TO BREAK
CAMP AT CAPITALPlanning Big Parade For
Wednesday Evening:
Move Condemned

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—The fast-swelling army of ex-service men besieging Washington to win payment of the bonus, made plans today for a great parade through the Capital tomorrow night, and definitely refused to consider going home.

More than 2,000 were estimated to be in the city, with thousands more on the way. Food available for them was nearly exhausted, police officials proposed that they leave Thursday morning promising truck rides for the first 50 miles homeward, but the leaders of the jobless men agreed they would not go.

They were hanging on, encouraged by definite prospect of a House vote on bonus-paying legislation June 13. It seems virtually impossible now that Congress will adjourn before then, even though the closing session should come before the Senate can add its action to that of the House.

For the first time since authorities started quarantining arrivals in an open field next to the Army's airport, the men were subjected early this morning to a soaking rain. Some 600 of the men at the field could not get under the crude shelters set up and there was little cover nearby.

Five thousand men, some foot-sore, some shabby and many hungry, moved on Washington today from all over the country.

They hitch-hiked, commandeered freight trains as they could, rode in trucks and went on foot—any way to get to Washington and join the 2,500 already bivouacked there to demand payment of the soldiers' bonus.

At Pittsburgh police mobilized at dawn today to insure order when the 1,500 men approaching that city from west and north arrived.

Four units of marchers were escorted quickly through the city yesterday. Many had no time to eat so quickly did they move on. At Wilkesburg, Pa., however, merchants donated food.

Two hundred and fifty marchers were given box car transportation by the Pennsylvania Railroad from Old Rube, Ind., yesterday and were due in Washington today. Two hundred and forty men who outmaneuvered police at Kansas City and boarded a freight passed through St. Louis, while 500 others mobilized at Wichita. At Brawley, Calif., a unit of 30 or more men abandoned motor transportation at Yuma, Ariz., and continued on by train.

Methods Opposed
Opposition to this method of urging bonus payments appeared frequently today among veterans themselves. The leader of 300 at Dallas resigned as their commander when they refused to leave the railway yards after being warned to do so. A New York minister who manned a machine gun in the war led the men in prayer for success on their journey.

In Boston a contemplated march was cancelled. At Lincoln, Neb., the executive committee of the Nebraska American Legion characterized the "bonus army" movements as "un-American and revolutionary."

The 400 men who were balked at Cleveland in their attempt to commandeer a freight ride to Washington spent Sunday in a suburb washing their clothes and laying plans for future action. Various delegations, riding in trucks from points in Michigan, Illinois and other middle western states, continued toward the Capital.

Talk of Communism was heard in several groups, but invariably the marchers indicated they would have nothing to do with any "reds" who might be found among them. The delegations that left New York City Saturday split because one group complained the other was composed of Communists.

Uxoricide Charges
On Maid's Evidence
Dismissed by Judge

St. Louis, June 6.—(AP)—A charge of murder against Walter Maddux, Webster Groves, Mo., laborer, in the killing of his wife, Mrs. Reba Maddux, was dismissed today by Justice of the Peace Lewis at Clayton after a preliminary hearing.

Lewis declared he did not believe the testimony of Clara Fish, 19-year-old housemaid in the Maddux home, who had charged that Maddux persuaded her to anesthetize his wife with ether on the afternoon of last October 30, then left the home and returned later with the statement that "he had done the job."

The former housemaid, under sentence of life imprisonment on her plea of guilty, had made five distinct statements as to her part in the murder of Mrs. Maddux, who was slashed to death with a razor.

FARMER'S STORY OF KIDNAPING
IS INVESTIGATEDCletus Herring Reported Experience
To Local Officers

Cletus Herring, who for the past eight years has been employed on the Stambrough dairy farm south of the city, reported Sunday afternoon having been the victim of a holdup and kidnaping Saturday night, which is being investigated. The story he told Sheriff Fred Richardson and State Officer Frank Tyne yesterday afternoon was most unusual, the officers said today.

Herring stated that he came to Dixon Saturday evening and left for the Stambrough farm about 9 o'clock. After turning west off the Pump Factory road, and about 40 rods from his destination, Herring told the officers that three strange men in a new Ford car crowded his machine into the ditch. Two of the men were armed with revolvers, he said. Ordering him into their car, they first searched his pockets and removed thirty cents, which was all of the money he possessed. He was then crowded into their machine.

According to his narrative, Herring was taken to the vicinity of Savanna, where his captors, who had not talked with him after placing him in their car, stopped suddenly near a wooded section and shoved him out. This was just before daylight Sunday morning, Herring told the officers. He wandered about until daylight and then succeeded in obtaining a ride to Sterling and walked across country to the Stambrough farm in South Dixon, where he arrived about 1:30 Sunday afternoon.

SENATORS HOPE

Faces Congress During The Week

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—The Senate today accepted the compromise tax bill, completing congressional action and sending it to President Hoover for signature.

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—Democratic leaders have decided to give one of President Hoover's recent proposals—the bill to create a system of Home Loan discount banks—legislative right of way in the House. That assures an early vote.

The House Ways and Means committee today approved the Garner relief bill for the second time but cut $39,000,000 from the total allocated to public buildings.

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—Faced with a mass of vital legislation, Congress today entered the final week before the national political conventions with a prediction by Senator Watson, the Republican leader, that it could not complete its work before July 1.

This opinion was challenged, however, by Chairman Fess of the Republican National Committee. He said he believed it would be possible for Congress to get through by June 14—the day the Republican conventions opens in Chicago. Both Senators gave their views to newspapermen.

THOS. CARROLL
FOUND IN HALL
BADLY BEATENDixon Character Is In Serious Condition
At Local Hospital

Thomas Carroll, well known local character, is in a critical condition at the Dixon public hospital where he is unconscious and apparently suffering from injuries sustained in an unknown manner. Harry Quick discovered the unconscious man lying in a hallway on the second floor of a building on First street between Hennepin and Galena avenue Sunday morning about 11 o'clock. The man lay in end of a dark hallway and his moaning attracted the attention of Mr. Quick who immediately notified Officer Clarence Seagren.

Chief Van Bibber and the officer accompanied Mr. Quick into the hallway and removed the unconscious man to an office, where a physician was summoned and he was later taken to the hospital. Officer Seagren had seen Carroll on First street about 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Eight stitches were required to close a deep flesh wound over the right eye, several ribs were fractured, he was badly bruised about the face and head and apparently was suffering from internal injuries. His condition indicated to the officers that he had been the recipient of a brutal beating and then his unconscious body thrown into the end of the dark hallway.

EARTHQUAKE IN
NO. CALIFORNIA
FATAL TO WOMANThree are Reported Hurt
In Severe Quake
Early Today

Eureka, Cal., June 6.—(AP)—One woman was killed and three others injured in a severe earthquake which shook northern California and southern Oregon early today.

Mrs. Walter McCutcheon of Eureka was fatally injured when the chimney of her home toppled over and crashed through the roof upon the family. Mr. McCutcheon suffered a broken leg and their three-year-old daughter, Louise, was slightly injured.

The other known victim was a bakery employe whose wrists were broken when the tremor jarred two bread trays together.

The quake was reported "very strong" in Klamath Falls, Ore., 155 miles northeast of Eureka, and was felt in San Francisco, 285 miles to the south. Redding, 85 miles east of Eureka, reported it "severe."

Four distinct shocks were felt here, all coming in rapid succession at about 12:40 A. M.

Water mains were broken, flooding basements of several homes. Telegraph and telephone service was temporarily disrupted. Many chimneys toppled and windows were broken.

Old residents said the quake here was probably as severe as the one which shook the Pacific coast in 1906 and caused the fire which destroyed San Francisco.

Surrounding communities reported feeling earth tremors.

The shock was reported felt in one outlying section of San Francisco. Kvdrldu emfwyp vbgkqj zme44?

Anti-Communist
Bill Passed House

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—The Dies bill for exclusion and expulsion of alien Communists was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

Representative Dies (D., Tex.), author of the measure, explained that Communists under the bill include all who advocate overthrow of government by force and violence, destruction of property, sabotage and setting up a system based on common ownership of property.

The Milwaukee Club of the American association has been declared today by Senator Watson to be in virtual agreement upon a prohibition plank calling for "prompt action of Congress" for resubmission of prohibition to state conventions.

The Indianan, who leads his party strategy in the Senate, said yesterday's meeting of Republican legislators here and subsequent conversations had brought about a "unity of view" on a resubmission plank.

The tentative platform declaration—as backed by these men—calls for enforcement and condemns the saloon. Its submission provision reads: "We favor prompt action by the congress to bring about the resubmission of the eighteenth amendment to the people of the several states, acting through nonpartisan conventions called for that sole purpose in accordance with article five to determine whether that amendment shall be retained, modified or repealed."

As a result of this meeting by the congressional leaders on the controversial point, its adoption by the national convention is regarded as certain in republican quarters at the capitol.

Knoll this morning appeared before Justice Grover Gehring and swore out a warrant for Frank Catalina of Grand Detour, who was reported to be the operator of the stalled car. Seventh Convicted Fairfield, Ill., June 6.—(AP)—Joe Kuka of West Frankfort was found guilty of complicity in the robbery and murder last December of Angus Moats, aged 47, Ervin farmer, by a jury in Circuit Court yesterday. He was sentenced to 14 years in the Southern Illinois penitentiary.

The jury received the case at 6 o'clock Saturday night and deliberated 16 hours before reaching the verdict.

Circuit Judge Charles H. Miller announced today a hearing on a motion for a new trial made by the defense will be held some time this week.

Six other men have been convicted for their part in the crime. One of the men, Elmer Gray, also of West Frankfort, was sentenced to be executed in the electric chair June 18.

The other defendants received sentences ranging from 14 years to life.

The state charged Kuka furnished part of the weapons used in the robbery and slaying and that the state stolen from Moat's home was taken to Kuka's bottling works in West Frankfort where it was broken open and the money divided.

Darrow To Ask For Stay Of Execution

Chicago, June 6.—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, the famous criminal lawyer, will swing into action this week in his second campaign to save 17-year-old Russell McWilliams of Rockford, Ill., from death in the electric chair.

He announced last night he would go to Rockford to ask a stay of execution of the death sentence imposed on the youth for the second time by Circuit Judge Arthur Fisher after a new trial ordered by the Supreme Court to Darrow's instance.

McWilliams pleaded guilty to killing a Rockford street car conductor during a holdup, offering drunkenness in extenuation. Judge Fisher sentenced him to die June 24 and Darrow said this would not give him enough time to prepare a bill of exceptions.

Should Judge Fisher decline to stay the execution, Darrow said he would request Governor Emmerson to grant a reprieve pending a review of the case by the Supreme Court, which once before saved the youth from the chair by granting the new trial.

Lowden Is Speaker
At Grinnell Rites

Grinnell, Ia., June 6.—(AP)—The physical sciences must step aside and let the social sciences take command if the nation is to set itself aright and endure, former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois today Grinnell graduates today.

Holding that the troubles of the world today are due to things which concern the human element in life, the intangible emotions and reactions of man, things which "can't be controlled by efficiency experts" and which cannot be regulated by physics and chemistry, he urged that colleges and universities reshape their courses of study.

The subjects which he said need to be stressed are economics, psychology, sociology and political sciences, and he added "in them, I believe, is the best hope for the future progress of our civilization as they are fields of knowledge which will help us to establish stable measures of value."

New York, June 6.—(AP)—The wife of Stanislaus Hausner, the priest who blessed him as he started his flight into the east, and the friends to whom he confided his detailed plans were trying hard today not to give up hope for the flier's safety, though admitting the chances of his being alive were slender.

By the most optimistic allowances the fuel supply Hausner carried for his New York-to-Warsaw flight would have lasted no longer than Sunday noon. The bare possibilities that Hausner may have landed and been unable to communicate word of his safety, or that he may have fallen into the sea and been picked up by a vessel not equipped with wireless were the only basis for hope of his being alive.

Mrs. Martha Hausner, to whom the nurse operator-aviator flier had been married but a year, remained much of the time near the telephone at the home of her husband's friend and spiritual adviser, the Rev. Father Paul Knappek of Newark, N. J.

Gift to "Poor" Mayor Inspired by Boy

"Well, Judge, it sounds a little silly," admitted Paul Block, lower right, when he sought to explain on the witness stand why he had enriched Mayor James J. Walker of New York City to the extent of $246,000.
The publisher declared that his son, Billy, when 10 years old, expressed solicitude about the Mayor's ability to support himself on his $25,000 salary. That gave Block the idea of trying to make a little money for Mayor Walker never invested a cent. Billy and his mother are shown above with Mayor Walker during the latter's visit to California last winter.

FIVE ATTORNEYS
SOUGHT BY ASSN.Action Taken Today
In Supreme Court
By Chicago Bar

Springfield, Ill., June 6—(AP)—
Launching disbarment proceedings in the Supreme Court today, the Chicago Bar Association charged
Joseph F. Mail, alias Joseph F.
Haas, with trying to get himself elected an Associate Judge of the Municipal Court by making numerous voters think he was one of the two other men highly regarded in public life.

Born Maniowski in Poland, the man early in his life in America had his name changed to Mail and in 1930 had his name changed again to Haas. Although it is charged he continued to use the name of Mail in all his legal and other affairs, except as a candidate at the April primary. He was admitted to the bar under the name of Mail in 1916.
Although there were 87 candidates in the primary, he went under the name of Haas and was one of the 12 nominated for the bench, being eleventh on the ticket.

The petition points out that the man and his family are registered under the name of Mail and voted under that name.

A suit is pending in Chicago to restrain the certification of Haas
as a candidate for Judge.
Disbarment action also was launched against four other lawyers by the Chicago Bar association.
One petition charges M. Lawrence
Fine was convicted in the Federal Court of concealing $10,000 in property from a trustee in bankruptcy, for which he was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail and pay a $500 fine. Other petitions charge
Frank M. Sweeney, Forest H. Richards and Ernest S. Fogelsonger with converting clients' money to their own use.

MARINERS

I saw a mariner far at sea,
Sailing cheerily, cheerily,
"A seasoned mariner he must be,"
Thought I, "to sing so cheerily!"

I signalled him; he signalled me.
I asked him whither bound was he,
"I'm bound for Nowhere," he answered me.
"I'm learning to sail my ship at sea."

I, too, was bound for Nowhere, so I asked him how the winds did blow.
"Fair," said he, "if you only know how to set your sails and let them blow."

Your ship will ride in any gale.
If you will set the proper sail."

I asked him if his chart did show that Nowhere still was far to go.
"Nowhere is everywhere," answered he.

"You are always in port and always at sea."

When you sail for Nowhere, cheerfully."

I asked him if his ship before had ever touched at Nowhere's shore.
"I've been there many times," said he.

"I've seen you there, it seems to me."

We drew up close that we might see—
I looked at him, he looked at me—
Imagine my surprise to see
That the mariner man looked just like me!

"Prayer" Is Topic Of B. Y. P. U. Meet

(Contributed)
The young people of the First Baptist church gathered around a campfire last evening, for worship and discussion of the topic "How Should We Pray?"

After songs and scripture and a series of sentence prayers, several young people presented various phases of the topic. They brought out that we should talk to and with God and not go through it just to hear ourselves talk or as a form.

We should remember that He is our Father, more willing to give us blessing than we are willing to receive it.

If we want the most out of our prayer life we must be reverent, sincere and unselfish. We should pray for others and thank God for the many blessings that others share with us.

We may say that our prayers are not answered but that is because we do not accept "no" for an answer. We only receive the answer according to our needs.

The following interpretation of the Lord's Prayer was given.
"Our Father in Heaven, may your name be kept holy. May your kingdom come. May the time come some day, when the things you want done here on earth may be done just as they are in Heaven."

"Give us this day the food we need. Forgive us the wrong we do against You, even as we forgive the wrong that other people do against us. Let us not be led into temptation to do what is wrong. Keep us from evil. And all the honor and glory shall be thine. Amen."

After a discussion of these ideas the meeting closed with a song and the benediction.

As the young people took part in the program they moved from the outer circle where all were seated at first to the inner circle for those who participated, thus carrying out the idea of the Inner Circle.

Tonight the young people are planning a wicker roast but it may turn itself into a hamburger fry in the church on account of the rain.

Regular Meeting Of W.C.T.U. Held

(Contributed)
The regular monthly meeting of the Woman Christian Temperance Union was held at 2:30 o'clock, on Friday afternoon in the Methodist Church, the president presiding.

This meeting fittingly observing the "Call to Prayer" as urged by the national officers of the W. C. T. U. One of the honorary members, Rev. W. W. Marshall, conducting the prayer service and giving the address of the afternoon. Flower Mission Day was also observed.

Counting opened by all singing "Count Your Blessings," with Mrs. Will Lee as pianist. Another song followed, "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

Rev. Marshall led the devotionals, reading the 5th Chapter of the epistle to John. A number of the members following with prayer.

Rev. Marshall gave a splendid address on our duties as American citizens, toward the 18th Amendment and the Constitution of the United States. We must follow our Christian example by right living and dry voting. If God is with us, who can be against us?

United prayers and efforts have always accomplished great things for the good of God's Kingdom.

Mrs. F. L. Thomas and Mrs. Rhodentnugh favored with a beautiful duet, "Sing, Sing, Bird on the Wing," "The Sweetest Flower That Grows," following as an encore number.

Mrs. D. C. Leake read from the "Union Signal" an interesting article, "A Tree Planted in Honor of the World's Ad National President, Ella A. Boole."

National council of women sent in 100,000 signatures to the board of strategy.

The secretary's report of last meeting was given by Mrs. Alice Missman.

Miss Kate Plant read the following memorandum as a tribute to Mrs. Evelyn Street, a much loved member.

"Old Father Time has with relentless hand, taken from our midst, one whose life and influence has ever been for that which is noblest and best in humanity."

Her motto was ever to go forward and lift up. We do and shall miss her. But may each one with loyalty and zeal carry on the work which she so valiantly strove to perform, until we too shall hear the plaudit of our Saviour. Well done thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Collection was then taken.
This was "Flower Mission Day" and the director had charge of the program which was very interesting. Thirteen beautiful bouquets of flowers were brought and taken to the sick and shut-in.

The meeting closed with benediction.
The July meeting place will be announced later.

Salads The Key For Spring Menus

By ALICE BLAKE
With the arrival of the warm months, wise housewives are turning to lighter and uncooked foods for delectable dishes. Of these, salads, green-leaf vegetables and fresh fruits are of first importance, because they have the essential vitamins without any of the flattening qualities of rich, heavy foods, and because they contain the mineral salts and roughage necessary to keep our systems in trim.

It is the wise woman who serves plenty of salads, one for luncheon one for dinner. They rouse the appetite jaded by a surfeit of heavy winter foods, and they are the best known spring tonic.

Tomato Surprise Salad
5 tomatoes
3-4 cup diced cucumber
1-2 cup diced hard-cooked eggs or cooked chicken
1-4 cup chopped walnuts
1 head lettuce
Double-whipped mayonnaise
Scald and skin medium-sized tomatoes. Chill and scoop out seeds and part of pulp. Chill all ingredients. When ready to serve, mix eggs or chicken, cucumber, tomato pulp and chopped walnuts with double-whipped mayonnaise, adding salt if desired. Fill the tomato shells with this mixture, arrange on lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise and walnut meats.

Tomato and Endive Salad
6 medium-sized tomatoes
4 tablespoons minced parsley
1 cup chopped celery
1-2 cup bread and butter pickles
1 bunch Endive
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
1 small head lettuce
Double-whipped mayonnaise
Dip tomatoes in boiling water and peel from the top down with a sharp knife. Cut off top for cover and scoop out a small portion of the pulp. Combine the pulp with chopped celery and chopped bread and butter pickles. Season with salt and paprika and moisten with some double-whipped mayonnaise. Sprinkle each tomato with minced parsley and fill the tomato cup with the salad mixture. Before replacing the top, stick three short endive points in each tomato cup. Garnish top with parsley and stand each tomato on a large slice of bread and butter pickle. Arrange on lettuce leaves, garnish with endive.

The bride was attired in navy blue georgette with accessories in costume and wore a corsage of roses and baby breath. Her bridesmaid wore a pretty silk print and corsage of the same flowers.

Both of the young people have many friends who will unite in expressing best wishes for a happy and successful married life. Mrs. Wilhelm was formerly an employee at the Kathryn Beard Shop, where her charming and happy personality endeared her to all. Mr. Wilhelm is a valued employee of the I. N. U. Co. ing with Algernon or Clementina not two months out of the blue. Will it hurt these babies to ride or will it not?

The best place for a baby is at home in his own bed, his own playyard, or in his buggy. Nevertheless, we cannot expect young people with a car who wish to visit grandma every Sunday 30 miles away to leave the pride of the family at home. We must adjust ourselves to the times.

We make the concession with a resigned gesture but we feel constrained to give a little advice to ease our conscience.

Hints for Parents
No man or woman ever should drive a car with a baby or child on his knee, furthermore, it is not safe to drive with a restless child on the seat beside the driver tugging at his arm.

No baby or little child ever should be left alone in a car for an instant.

A little baby is more comfortable in a long padded basket on the back seat, anchored so it won't slip, and with sides high enough to keep the baby safe. Baby hammocks of various kinds are made to sling across the car, but they should be fastened so as to prevent too much swinging or bumping.

Keep off rough roads as much as possible and keep the speed down.

During feedings stop the car and do not start again for half an hour. This for long rides. Otherwise time feedings so that they do not occur during the journey.

Cold wind should be carefully guarded against, or any strong wind at any time of year.

Never close a car up with the engine running if the baby is inside.

Try to avoid long rides as much as possible, and keep out of carbon monoxide fumes in the heavy city traffic.

Never leave an active baby in the back seat of an open car alone or a closed car with windows down.

YOUR CHILDREN
By Olive Roberts Barton
GIVEN BY NEA SERVICE INC.

It takes the proverbial cake the way young married people bounce around with their babies these days.

Bounce is right, although I mentioned it in a general way. I am thinking more specifically of motor cars.

Oh, yes, I know Jim had to sell his and couldn't buy another, or he was just ready to get one when he lost his job. But someday, sometime, one may drop from heaven and then will come up this question in your mind about the car and the baby. And in the meantime, there are hundreds of thousands of young couples all over the country who go joy riding with Algernon or Clementina not two months out of the blue.

Will it hurt these babies to ride or will it not?

VON HIPPER'S PART.

The news that Admiral Franz Von Hipper died in Germany the other day failed to get more than a paragraph or two in most American newspapers. And that, in a way, was rather odd; for Admiral Von Hipper was a leading actor in some of the few really spectacular, panoramic scenes that the World War afforded.

The World War wasn't long on pictorial effects. Its battles were too big, its operations too extended; one man could seldom see more than a detail of the whole; such tremendous fights as the Somme or Verdun were too vast for any panorama.

But there were a few great spectacles, and this Von Hipper had his part in one of the greatest—the battle of Jutland.

This took place on May 31, 1916. The German high seas fleet had ventured out into the North Sea, and Hipper, commanding the cruiser squadron, was some 50 miles in advance. Coming down from the northwest was the British grand fleet, preceded by the battle cruiser squadron under Admiral Beatty. It was Beatty and Von Hipper who collided first.

The battle that followed furnished, really, three "pictures."

The first came when Von Hipper, turning south, tried to lure Beatty back into the jaws of the high seas fleet. A running fight ensued—and then, his fragile battle cruisers racing like mad, the English commander suddenly saw smoke on the horizon far to the south, and made out, presently, the 22 dreadnaughts of the German fleet steaming straight toward him. Here, surely, was one of the great panoramas of the war.

The second was similar. Beatty now fled north, with the entire German fleet in pursuit. There was violent fighting at the head of the line; and presently, as the smoke cloud lifted, the Germans saw before them the high tripod masts of the 28 battleships of the British grand fleet. Another panorama!

Then, late at night, the third; the Germans running home, darkness on the water, the only lights the winking flashes from the guns, extending all along the horizon, as two of the greatest fleets ever built struck at one another in the dark.

BACK TO THE FARM.

No aspect of the depression is more interesting than the way in which out-of-work city people have been slipping back to the farm lately.

In nearly every part of the country there is going on a quiet but steady exodus from the city to the country. Abandoned farms are getting new tenants. Men who have toiled in factories for years are getting out on the open acres to try their hands at agriculture. Children used to cramped city streets are discovering that country fields can make fine playgrounds.

To be sure, the plight of agriculture is very little, if any, better than that of industry. The farmer is having his troubles just as the city man is—has been having them, in fact, for years. Prices paid for farm produce are down, and if the number of farmers is to increase they probably will go still lower.

But the exodus continues; for when it gets right down to a struggle for the bare necessities of life, the man on a farm enjoys an enormous advantage over the city chap.

The farmer may be plagued by mortgages, high taxes, overproduction and so on; but unless he is a one-crop specialist, he doesn't starve to death. He may not have a dollar in the bank, or any immediate prospects of getting any, but he has food in his larder, and he knows where tomorrow's meal is coming from.

The factory hand—perhaps it would be better to say the ex-factory hand—seems to have been pondering over this fact. As a result he is heading for the country. A few acres along a dusty road look good to him, even though he knows that they'll never make him rich. They'll take him out of the breadline.

The danger in all of this is that many people utterly unsuited to farm life are apt to try to make farmers out of themselves. For such people—those who know nothing about farms, and have no capital to get them started—the change is likely to be a leap from the frying pan into the fire. But for those who are willing to work, who know something about farming and who go into it with a full realization of the difficulties ahead, it ought to be an excellent move.

Build ships for national defense to put money in the pockets of the American working man and out into the channels of trade.—Mrs. Frederick Williams, National President, American Legion Auxiliary.

We believe in the wisdom of prohibition as the most effective means of curbing the liquor traffic and we object to any weakening of the enforcement of laws. — Resolution adopted by Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs.

Now at 188 I'm just a shadow of my former self and I intend to stay that way.—Paul Whiteman, orchestra leader.

The TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN

PICTURES BY JOE KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"My goodness," shouted Duncy, when the rocket seemed to jump again. "I think this is the fastest trip that we have ever had."

"In planes we've whizzed out through the air, but from them never got a scare. This rocket rather frightens me. When we land I'll be glad."

"Oh, there you go," said Scouty. "You are always trying to make us blue. I'm sure that we will be all right, if we just rest at our ease."

"We are sailing onward very fast. Of course I don't know how long it will last, but anyway I hardly think we'll topple in the trees."

By this time they were out of sight of land, and every Tinymite was wondering what would come next. Then Coppy loudly cried:

"Oh, look! A rain cloud is drawing near. We'll crash right through the thing, I fear. The rocket will get wet, but we're all safe because we're inside."

And then they sailed right through the cloud. It scared the little Tinymites. But, in an instant they were back into the broad daylight.

"Oh, no," said Windy. "What a scare, when we went in and out of there. And yet there was no use to fret, because we are quite all right."

A moment later, with a frown, we Duncy said, "We are heading down. Yes, sir, we're going toward the earth. I wonder where we'll land?"

"I hope a hay stack is below. We'd land in safety there. I know. Right now we're going down too fast, it's very hard to stand."

It wasn't very long until a big bump stopped their rocket thrill. The rocket stopped real suddenly.

"We're on a tent," cried one. And he was right. The rocket spent its speed upon a circus tent. Said Scouty, as they all climbed out. "Here's where we have some fun!"

(The Tinies are put to work in the next story.)

Historic Incident

Shortly after Sir Patrick Manson discovered what he called Filaria sanguinis hominis, and his announcement was made to the world, a mandarin came into his room and spat on the floor to show his contempt for this scientist. Whatever Manson thought for the moment was changed when he noticed that the sputum was tinged with blood. A sample was placed under the microscope and the eggs of a hitherto unknown worm were discovered. Dr. Claude Lillingston writes in Hygeia Magazine.

AIR PATHS of GLORY

THE HUNTER BROTHERS

By DEXTER TEED
NEA Service Writer

Kenneth would like to be a heavyweight boxer, John and Albert do stunt flying when they can find a job, and Walter risking his neck, takes a fling at speed flying now and then.

Four coal miners they were, from Sparta, Ill., then they were air mail pilots. And then Kenneth and John, aided by Albert and Walter in a refueling plane, with sister Irene cooking for all, flew to an endurance flight record over Chicago.

It was two years ago that the Hunter brothers did it. They reached fame, they didn't acquire wealth. Their record was broken soon, by Forrest O'Brien and Dale Jackson (Jackson died less than a year ago in a crack-up at Miami). And with their record gone they went back—home.

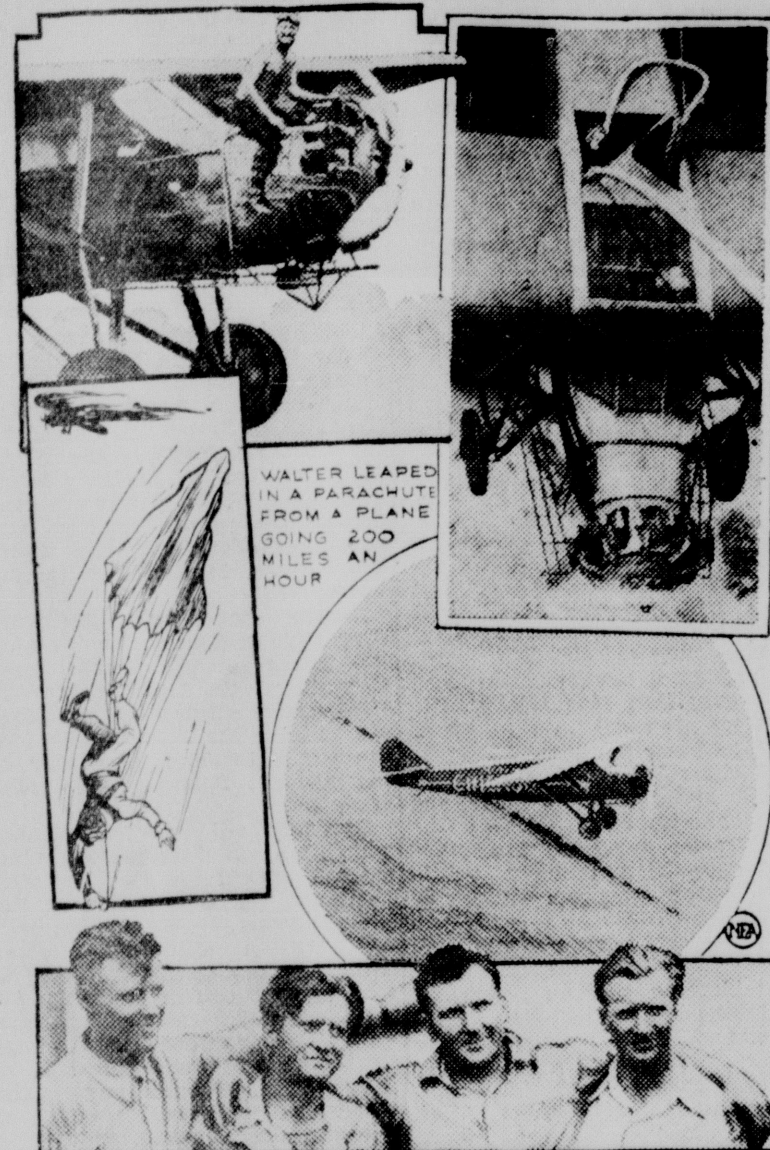

There they are now. Kenneth, six feet tall, has declared there is no money in flying now and that he would be a fighter if he got a chance. He hasn't. So he flies—when he can. Only recently a paragraph in a St. Louis paper announced that the Hunter brothers were to give a stunting exhibition 20 miles west of the city. That was all.

It was a striking contrast: two years ago they were photographed, their plane snapped, column upon column was written about the flight. They were a colorful quartet, famous. Now they are glad to make a living.

That June day, though, when Kenneth and John climbed into the monoplane, "City of Chicago," at Sky airport and took with them the good wishes of Albert and Walter and sister Irene, they confidently expected to break the record and cash in with about $200,000 or more.

Storm Tries Strength
It was a typical endurance flight, with its drama, its dogged persistence, its grim and its nerve-wrenching sleeplessness.

Night came. A storm swirled up over Lake Michigan. Driving rain pelted the plane, gusty winds tossed it up, then faded away and let it down. John slept fitfully, in cramped quarters; Kenneth, eyes peering into the blackness, held the controls. The lightning flashed and thunder rolled, ominously.

There was sunshine too. Albert and Walter circled up in the refueling plane, a hose was let down and gas poured in. Food was lowered and the unhaven, dirty men ate. And the same thing was repeated, day after day, then on into week after week.

23 Days of It

The motor sputtered, misfired. Their hearts jumped. Groggy but determined, Kenneth teetered out on the catwalk, as the plane lost speed. Then he worked fast making repairs. At last the motor fired regularly, and they went on. That July day when those haggard men came down they had spent 533 hours, 40 minutes and 30 seconds in the air—more than 23 days! Jubilant, they hoped for riches, which they didn't get.

And since then, with the exception of last fall when Walter leaped in a parachute from a burning plane going 200 miles an hour at the Cleveland air races, the Hunter brothers have been out of the news. They flew to fame by fortitude; they returned to obscurity by necessity.

In a little folding plane, one intrepid adventurer flew 12,000 miles, alone. Maybe you don't recall him. Read tomorrow's "Air Paths of Glory" in the Telegraph.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

STALIN WASN'T THE FIRST TO UPSET RUSSIA

Ignorance, filth, darkness and cruelty marked the Russia of the late 17th century. An oriental czar ruled in the Kremlin, and a ring of greedy nobles ground the luckless peasants into the dirt. Compared with the rest of Europe, Russia was sunk deep in a hopeless barbarism.

And then along came a boyish czar who liked to play with soldiers, but who had the saving grace of being willing to learn; and he pitched in to bring his great, indolent country up to date.

All of this is described in "Peter the Great," by Alexei Tolstoy, a book which is partly biography and partly fiction, and which probably can best be described as a historical novel.

The first part of the book is the most forceful. In it there is a clear picture of the strange, crazy mess into which affairs at Moscow had got; the turmoil of stupidity, terror and filth which possessed all of Russian society.

There is, also, a good description of the slow development of Peter, how he began by maintaining a "play army" on the palace grounds, how he made friends with the foreign merchants in Moscow and learned from them how backward his country really was, how he toured Europe, working in shipyards and factories to school himself, and how he finally returned to begin a job of remodeling which makes Stalin's Five-Year Plan look simple.

But the book ends too abruptly. The author brings you to his climax—and then quits on you. Maybe that's all right if you're familiar with Russian history. If like me you aren't, it's disconcerting.

ROOSEVELT TO BUCK SMITH IN CON. CHAIRMAN

Camp Of New York Governor Radiates Supreme Confidence

(By The Associated Press)
An unexpected gesture of supreme confidence in the presidential camp of Franklin D. Roosevelt diverted political attention today from significant prohibition developments in both parties.

The Roosevelt Generalissimo, James A. Farley, deliberately bucked Alfred E. Smith and others opposing the New York Governor's nomination by announcing yesterday that Senator Walsh of Montana, would be sought as permanent chairman of the Democratic convention instead of J. J. Shouse.

The latter, chairman of the party executive committee, considered anti-Roosevelt by the Governor's supporters, previously had been picked up by the committee on arrangement in a harmony-seeking division which gave the keynote post to Senator Barkley of Kentucky, a staunch Roosevelt man.

Resubmission Plank
Simultaneously with this development came a statement from a conference of Republican congressional leaders in Washington that the party platform would carry a resubmission plank, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, was the spokesman.

And in North Carolina, which has been staunchly dry a quarter century, Robert R. Reynolds, a senatorial candidate running on an outright repeal platform, was actually leading the dry Senator Cameron Morrison, veteran political leader of the state, for the democratic Senatorial nomination. As other candidates, dividing a 50,000 vote, blocked a majority, the issue was destined to be settled in a second primary.

This week selection of delegates to both Republican and Democratic conventions will be all but completed. The Republicans choose 31 in Indiana Wednesday, and 11 in Idaho Friday. Tomorrow the Democrats pick Florida's 14 and Mississippi's 20. Thursday Virginia's 24 will be chosen. Idaho completed the week's work by naming eight on Friday.

MOIST PLANK ASSURED
Washington, June 6—(AP)—A definite prediction that a prohibition resubmission plank will be placed in the Republican platform issued from a campaign conference held yesterday by party strategists.

The clearcut statement was made by Senator Moses of New Hampshire as he emerged from the luncheon conference at the Congressional Country Club. But he added that no details have been agreed upon.

James R. Farley of Ohio, chosen to direct the platform drafting task as chairman of the Resolutions committee, was the center of the conference, absorbing the views of the several members of Congress who are to hold places on that committee, but who may be kept here by protracted sessions. Postmaster General Brown, pre-convention manager for President Hoover, sat in also.

Garfield said the platform and its several plans would not take definite shape for some days yet, in fact that he would not make up his mind until he talked with the whole resolutions group at the convention.

In the group at the meeting were Senators Watson of Indiana, Smoot of Utah, Dickinson of Iowa, Bingham of Connecticut, Hastings of Delaware, Robinson of Indiana, Patterson of Missouri, Glenn of Illinois, Heber of Rhode Island and Jean of New Jersey and Representatives Snell and Fish of New York. Senator Fess, the National Chairman, was not invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 5.

The Golden Text was, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power, for all things are created by thee and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures" (James 1:17, 18).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is not the creator of an evil mind. Indeed, evil is not Mind. We must learn that evil is the awful deception and unreality of existence. Evil is not supreme; good is not helpless; nor are the so-called laws of matter primary, and the law of Spirit secondary" (p. 207).

Third Attempt To Avoid Jail Fails
Terre Haute, Ind., June 6—(AP)—Willard Large, 50, of Vermillion, Ill., failed last night in his third attempt to escape arrest, after having eluded Sheriff Joe Dreher on two previous occasions. Wanted on a larceny warrant from Shelby county, Illinois, and also a similar local charge, Large was captured by two city motorcycle officers after a long chase through the north section of the city during which the rear end of his auto was riddled by fire from Sheriff Dreher by jumping into the Wabash river and swimming down stream to the opposite shore.

SENSATIONS IN STOCK MARKETS' PROBE ASSURED

Senate Committee To End Inquiry With Tremendous Bang

Washington, June 6—(AP)—A sensational finish before Congress adjourns is promised for the Senate's stock market investigation.

With evidence suitable for the hearings already piled high enough to keep the Banking committee busy questioning witnesses all summer, the committee counsel was instructed to cut the investigation short, concentrate on one big case and wind up with a bang. The investigators were back to New York, expecting to be ready for another session some day this week.

The case selected has not been described but apparently is regarded by the investigators as more important than any so far presented, and it is believed possibly to involve "bull raiding" instead of "bull operations."

In addition, and to complete the picture presented by the hearings, Chairman Norbeck hopes to get in the remaining testimony a graphic story of the public getting shorn by manipulations of market insiders working with the aid of paid publicity also Richard Whitney, President of the Exchange, is to be recalled, both to give him a requested chance to read out his initial testimony and to question him in the light of the latest disclosures.

Mussolini Outlives Another Bomb Plot
Rome, June 6—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini has outlived another bomb plot against his life.

The fact became known yesterday with the announcement that police had arrested a 25-year-old Italian armed with a pistol and two bombs, outside the Premier's office in the Palazzo Venezia.

The arrest was made Saturday. The announcement said the man, Angelo Sbardellotto, confessed he intended to kill the Premier during the celebration in honor of General Garibaldi, Italy's liberator, and his wife, Anita. The time was chosen, the young man said, because Garibaldi was a symbol of liberty in Italy.

The police identified Sbardellotto as a member of an organization called "Justice and Liberty," pledged to violent action. The bombs were intended for the Premier and the pistol was to be used to kill himself, the prisoner told police.

TIGERS, INDIANS TO SHOW POWERS IN COMING GAMES

Intersectional Series Will Show If They Can Stop East

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sport Writer
The forthcoming invasion of the west by the powerful eastern teams will furnish the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians a chance to demonstrate just how seriously they must be considered in the current American League pennant chase.

These two clubs alone seem equipped to offer adequate opposition to the three eastern contenders, the New York Yankees, Washington Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics.

As the race stands now the Tigers and Indians are being hard-pressed to prevent the east from occupying the first three places in the standings. The Yanks, of course, hold a five-game lead with Washington second and Detroit, Philadelphia and Cleveland trailing at half game intervals.

The Yankees, in their last game before leaving for the west, trounced the Red Sox yesterday, 12-1 as Babe Ruth contributed his 16th homer of the season and Ben Chapman and Bill Dickey also hit for the circuit.

Two Senators Hurt
The Athletics walloped Washington, 11-7 although out of 17-13. The Senators missed the scoring punch of Joe Cronin and Heinie Manush, both on the sidelines with injuries. Jimmy Foxworth's 21st homer in the east counted six runs in the eighth to trip Cleveland, 10-9. Wess Ferrell getting in the Indians' box, just in time to be charged with the defeat.

In the National League, the Boston Braves went into a virtual tie with the idle Chicago Cubs by winning two games from the New York Giants, 6-3 and 7-6. Art Shires' tenth inning double scored Worthington with the winning run in the opener. Bob Brown's excellent relief pitching saved the second game. Manager Bill Terry of the Giants suffered a leg injury in the second game and had to retire early.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved into fourth place with a 2-2 victory in both ends of a double header with the Cincinnati Reds. Paul Derringer and Dizzy Dean went the route in each game for the champions. The Phillies vacated the cellar in favor of the Giants by scoring five runs in the ninth to beat Brooklyn, 7-6. Van Mungo allowed only five hits but walked 11 and had to be relieved with none out in the ninth. Jack Quinn and Bill Clark failed to stop the Phils' rally.

It appears that Miss Dorothy Ferguson of the Los Angeles A. C. is about to be strong-armed into an Olympic diving title if this dry-land practice with Marion P. Here you see Dorothy in the "tuck" of a one-and-a-half dive, just before being shot out of Betty's brawny arms, in the Olympic swimming stadium at Los Angeles. Dorothy holds the national low board championship and is a leading contender for the high board and high platform titles in the Olympic events.

Hooks and Slides

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
Those White Sox who moved in on Umpire George Moriarty in mob formation after the Memorial Day doubleheader in Cleveland should have taken pause. Mr. Moriarty is a poet.

When the embattled umpire offered to take on all the White Sox alive, one by one, he may have been dreaming of Thermopylae, or something like that. Anyway, when Pitcher Milt Gaston essayed to be the first of the Sox Moriarty had to lick, George pulled a punch from the very depths of his poetic soul and knocked Gaston colder than four aces.

TOUGH BARD, TOO—

How many of the White Sox George could have taken, one by one is just guesswork, of course. But I'd say a conservative number would be between 40 and 50. If you could write and peddle such poetry as George has written and peddled, you could lick the White Sox, too.

George finally went down fighting like a true poet. Infuriated Sox practiced hook sliding with George's head for a base. But even in his hour of travail, Moriarty lived up to the Moriarty tradition. Bill Dinnen, fellow ump, moved over as if to interfere, but George told him to lay off, Macduff.

HERE'S A SAMPLE—

But to forget the fight and get back to the poetry. Looking through an old scrapbook, I chanced upon a bit of verse by Moriarty, entitled, "Don't Get Chummy." Here it is:

"O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? The mortals I mean of a ball playing crowd. 'Today, hailed by fandom as 'Champs,' if you please, tomorrow as well pulled as coddles and fleas. 'You'll knock down a liner that saves the old game, and rooters rejoice just to mention your name. 'Then in a few days if you miss a pop fly and let in a run, you're a terrible guy. 'You smash the old apple for days in a row, and each time you swing you come through with a blow;

"Then, all of a sudden you slump and they hum. 'The title of king is attached to a bum.'"

MANAGER AND UMPIRE—

"O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? The miracle-manager, Mickey O'Dowd, with just the same ball club he copped with last year, has finished a kilo or two in the rear.

"The pitcher who towers above all the rest; the catcher, just why should he throw out his chest and brag of achievements? He cannot forestall the trip to the bushes that follows his fall.

"And then we consider the ump in the fray; a mortal no less than the others who play. He rules absolutely with a wave of his paw, and yet everyone wants to land on his jaw.

TOUGHEST RACE IN HISTORY OF NATIONAL LOOP

A Blanket Finish Is Seen By Manager Rogers Hornsby

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sport Writer
Chicago, June 6 — (AP)—As Rogers Hornsby led his Cubs out of the west today for their first invasion of the eastern salients, he predicted that the National League was in for one of the toughest eight-club, free-for-all battles since its organization.

"Don't fool yourself about this race," the Rajah said. "It is a natural, an eight-club race that's going to be loaded with more surprises than a triple play in the first game of the season. You can toss a blanket over the field right now and it's liable to be just that close when the season ends.

"We have been sticking around in first place with enough persistence to label us as a pennant-contending team but we know we have to round out a better outfield. We're willing to lay down plenty to get a good hitting outfielder, but where are we going to get him? Cuyler might get back in a week or two and his return would be a great help but by that time we might have lost our great opportunity.

"One of the riddles this season to me is the slow start of the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants. But they'll be up there fighting for that pennant in September. And the Braves, Pirates and Cincy Reds are bound to get tougher. Brooklyn may get pitching and burn up the league and the same goes for Philadelphia. Pittsburgh looks like the most improved club and its rise is no streak of luck. Meineke's return marks the Pirates as far more dangerous contenders."

Little Known Pro Leads Golf Match

Sandwich, England, June 6 — (AP)—A. R. Bradbeer, little known professional from Somerset, today led a fine international field, including three ranking American players, in the first round of qualifying play of the British open golf championship, with a par-shattering 70.

Bradbeer finished with the late players over the par 72 St. George's course to lead Arthur Havers, British winner in 1923 and the last Briton to hold the title, by one stroke.

Gene Sarazen, MacDonald Smith and Tommy Armour, defending champion—the three leading American hopes—were right up in the van. Sarazen and Mac Smith with 73s and Armour with a 75.

Marcel Dallemagne of France, and several native Britons, were just in front of the Americans with scores of 72 while Robert Sweeney, American student at Oxford, scored a surprising 75 to stay with the leaders.

Today's qualifying rounds were played both at St. George's and Prince's course, where the tournament proper will start Wednesday. Sarazen, Mac Smith and Havers playing their fine round over the more difficult tournament course where par is 74. Armour played at St. George's with Bradbeer.

Golfers Qualify For National Open

New York, June 6 — (AP)—Out of the nation-wide sectional qualifying rounds played today in 20 widely scattered districts will emerge 116 qualifiers to complete the field of 150 for the national open golf championship to be played at the Fresh Meadow Club, Flushing, Long Island, June 23, 24 and 25.

Most of the leading stars are included among the 34 players exempt from the sectional qualifying competition, but a few were forced to take their chances with the rest in today's 36-holes of medal play in one district or another.

Cub Pitchers Hold Answer!

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor
New York — The pitching bureau of the Chicago Cubs which has been keeping a fair hitting, fair fielding ball club at the top of the league, must give one more correct answer by June 27.

The question is the National League pennant this year, and the Cubs' current invasion of the east which lasts nearly all month, will furnish the reply.

Judging by the way those Cub pitchers have been functioning to date, the mid-summer test should reveal that the old saying about pitching being 90 per cent of a club's strength is absolutely on the up and up.

The Cubs with a few holes here and there in the infield, and one good outfielder, have been beating down their enemies in the west by excellency of pitching and not a whole lot else.

Detective Grasped First Opportunity

Chicago, June 6 — (AP)—It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody some good and it doesn't pay to sit around and talk about "hard times."

That's the theory Police Sergeant John Dalton believes in and he told a group of detectives so yesterday while they were bawling the times.

"The trouble with you," he said, "is that you don't grasp opportunities."

As he spoke two men walked into the Detective Bureau, coatless. One said he was John C. Lacy of New Orleans and the other gave his name as Alton Garlick of Rockford, Ill.

"We deserted two months ago from the 14th Cavalry at Fort Sheridan," said Lacy.

"Come with me," said the Sergeant and he saw to it that they were locked up.

"Yes," he went on with his lecture, "there are plenty of chances to make money these days. For instance, do you know the government pays $50 each for the arrest of deserters?"

HELEN TO SEEK BRITISH TITLE AT WIMBLEDON

"Little Poker Face" Is Supreme In French Match

Auteuil, France, June 6 — (AP)—Helen Wills Moody has completed the first lap of her tennis drive toward all three of the world's major women's singles championships. She won the French title in Roland Garros Stadium yesterday, brushing aside Mme. Rene Methies of France, 7-5, 6-1, thus completing her brilliant march through Europe's best without the loss of a set.

Now Mrs. Moody will seek the British title at Wimbledon, starting June 20, and then will defend her American championship at Forest Hills later in the year.

The California ace twice has succeeded in winning all three championships in the same year. She has won the American title seven times; and the French and British crowns four times each but only in 1928 and 1929 did she win all three in the same year.

The men's singles final between Henri Cochet and George De Stefani was to be held today with the French star an overwhelming favorite. Cochet beat his countryman, Marcel Bernard in the semi-finals yesterday while the Italian conquered Roderich Menzel of Czechoslovakia.

If Cochet wins he will share with Mrs. Moody the distinction of being the only double winner of the championships. Mrs. Moody and Elizabeth Ryan accounted for the women's doubles title and Cochet and Jacques Brugno the men's. Fred Perry and Betty Nuthall of England won the mixed doubles, beating Mrs. Moody and Sidney B. Wood in the finals.

The surprise has been Lonnie Warneke. Under careful coaching last year he improved considerably, but there was no hint of the distinct shock he gave the baseball world—including his manager—by suddenly becoming unbeatable by the toughest clubs this season.

He will be given his stiffest test against the Giants, Braves and Phillies. If he can hold his own against the hard-hitters of these three teams during the road trip, the pennant verdict should be reached by the end of June.

Londonderry: Shrine Of Irish History, Romance

Washington, D. C. — "Londonderry, terminus of Amelia Earhart Putnam's trans-Atlantic flight, long has been immortalized by a song, the 'Londonderry Air,' and by centuries of Irish lore and legend," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The most northerly town in Ireland, and one of the most prosperous, it nestles on the famous Foyle. It is more commonly known locally as Derry, having received its not altogether welcome prefix when James I granted lands in the vicinity to the City of London. In song and story the city is the 'Maiden City of Ireland.'"

The city's song, which is sung all over Ireland on fete days, briefly tells the city's story:

"Where Foyle his swelling waters roll northward to the main,
Here, Queen of Erin's daughters, fair Derry fixed her reign.
A holy temple crowned her, and commerce graced her street,
A rampart wall was round her, the river at her feet."

"Along the two-mile quays of the river Irishmen jolly each other as they load and unload the foreign, colonial and coasting trade of the docking vessels. For the Foyle is wide and deep, and large tonnage ships sailing the flags of many nations bring their wares to her port. Busy looms in the city make linen, and then laughing, twinkly-eyed Irish girls make the linen into shirts before it leaves Londonderry. The salmon fishery on the Foyle is important and the town has timber mills, foundries, grain mills, and shipyards."

Founded by Saint Columba

"But Derry has for the traveler a charm greater than its hustle and up-and-doing atmosphere — the story of a past replete with romance, devotion to principle, and the exhibition of an indomitable spirit. Columba, the greatest of the Irish saints after Patrick and Brigid, in 546 looked on the oak-clad hills and coveted them. Here he founded his abbey, known as Daire-Columbkille, or Columba's Oak Grove, within the shadow of the great fort on a neighboring hill, the stronghold of the Lord of Tyrone, in order that his sanctuary might have the protection of the fort. But in vain did he reckon his chances against the Danes and Saxons who, time and again, pushed their boats against his shores. Despite their plundering and burnings, the settlement grew and maintained its independence against even the English until 1606. Derry was then given to the Corporation of London, which took on the prefix London. The Irish Society, to which Londonderry and much of the surrounding country had been given, pledged itself to inclose Derry within walls, and these walls, wide enough for a coach and four, are excellently preserved today. Long ago they grew too small to encompass all the inhabitants of the bustling port, but they stand like a stiff

Their Plea for Dad Won Hoover's Aid

They traveled alone from Detroit to Washington to appeal to President Hoover for the release of their father, Charles R. Feagan, held on a Federal charge for possession of a stolen automobile. And here on the steps of the White House are Irene, 11, Bernice, 13, and Clifford, 10, after Mr. Hoover had promised to use his 'good offices' in their behalf. The father was freed pending a new hearing.

belt around the waistline of the hill on which the city is built.

A City of Seven Gates

"The most inconvenient thing about them is that, though they are more than a mile in circumference there are only seven gates leading through them. Because the walls defended the city in the siege begun by James II, a busy man must make a jaunt out of his way to find a passageway through them, but, true to Irish sentiment, he does it without a murmur. On one of the bastions of the wall an old gun, affectionately known as 'Roaring Meg,' points her nose over the city."

"Here, too, on the hill in the center of crowded old graveyard stands the quaint, squat cathedral with its queer pinnacled tower. It is called after St. Columba, although it is not on the site of the old abbey built by the Saint fourteen centuries ago."

"On a high, inaccessible hill in the distance, looms the stronghold of the Lords of Tyrone. It is said that St. Patrick came to the fort to baptize Owen who first set himself up to rule over the Province of Tyrone, and St. Columba visited it before his exile. Here, too, captive Danes who had threatened the peace of the city were dragged in triumph."

"Though every trace of the old castle has been obliterated, the massive stone wall fourteen feet thick and eighteen feet high, resembling the handwork of a cyclops, has stood out grimly against the centuries. A small iron gate hangs across a two-foot doorway, the only entrance to its huge amphitheater-like interior, which reveals further devices designed for the protection of the inmates."

Daily Health Talk

SORE THROAT

Ordinarily we think of a sore throat as a tonsillitis which has extended to involve the surrounding tissues.

Upon examination, the throat in such condition presents a pair of inflamed tonsils, with the surrounding tissue red and injected.

Following this line of thought, we are inclined to blame the tonsils for all sore throats and to prescribe their removal as a remedy.

Undoubtedly, in a good number of instances, the fault does reside in the tonsils, which, having become chronically infected, are the source of throat disease.

In other instances, however, the inflammation of the tonsils is secondary to infection existing elsewhere, and the red, swollen, painful state of the tonsils merely bears witness to the fact that they are trying to do their job in blocking the spread of infection.

Sore throat may arise from infections elsewhere in the head spaces. Infections of the nose and nasal sinuses, nasal obstructions and decayed and diseased teeth may be contributing causes.

With the appearance of acute infectious processes involving the nose and throat, there are a number of practical measures that the individual can take to help overcome the disease.

Salt water made by the addition of a teaspoonful of salt to a glass of warm water is recommended as a gargle and for a gentle nose wash.

The nose and throat under normal conditions effectively drain themselves of their secretions.

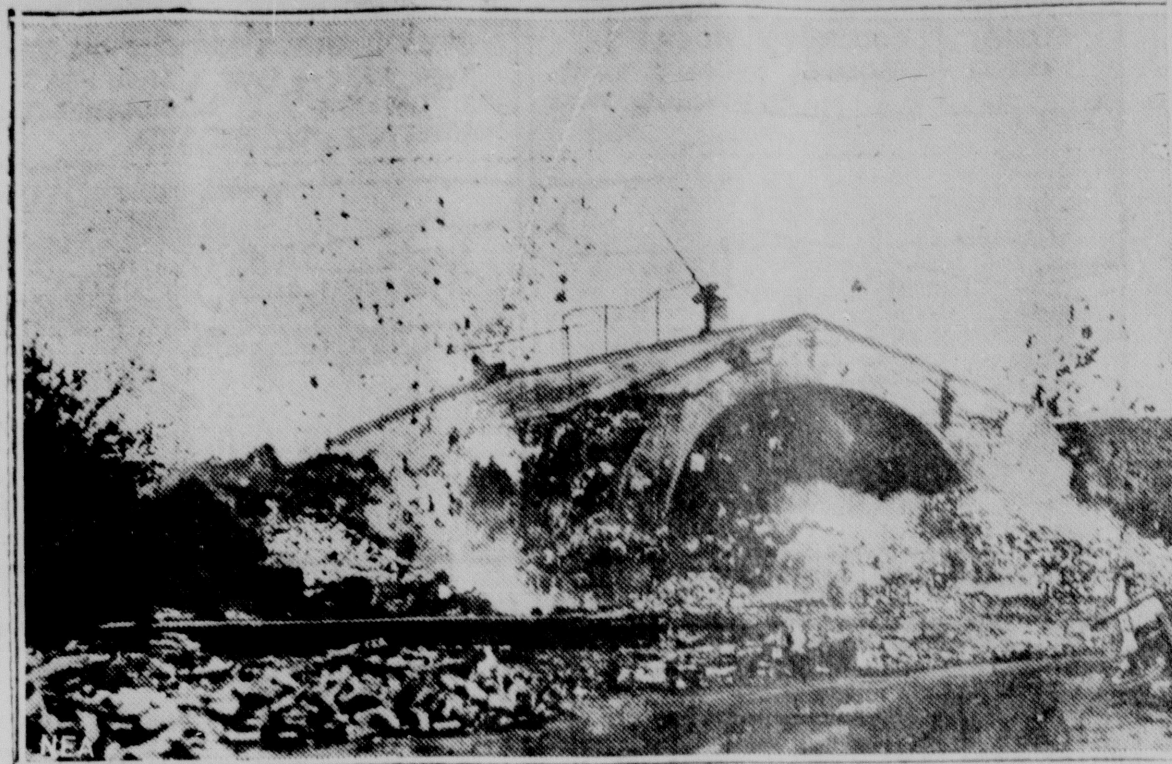

Under provocation of bacterial and other irritants the mucous lining of the throat may give off so much mucus that the head spaces become clogged with their own secretions. These can be washed away and the respiratory tract cleared.

Gargles and nose lavages should be copious but gentle. Such treatment will also obviate the necessity for hard blowing and thus avoid the danger of involving the internal ear.

Bicentennial Contest To Be Determined Soon

The George Washington Bicentennial essay contest is drawing to a close. The national winner will soon be announced and will receive the official United States George Washington Bicentennial Commemorative Gold Medal as an award.

Thirty-four states and the Territory of Hawaii have competed in this contest, each state having a special contest committee to cooperate with the Federal Bicentennial Commission. These committees conducted contests in their respective states and each submitted the winning essay to the United States Commission in Washington. From these essays a group of judges, composed of well known American educators, will select the national winner.

The essay contest, which was open only to high school students, is but one part of the entire educational contest program being carried out by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. Declamatory contests for the elementary grades and oratorical contests for college students are also going on throughout the country. The latter will terminate sometime in June when the ten regional winners will meet in Washington, D. C. for the finals. State winners in the oratorical contest will receive silver George Washington Commemorative medals; regional winners will receive Bicentennial plaques; and the national winner will be awarded the official Commemorative gold medal.

The declamatory contest, which is limited to state participation, will continue in many states until next November, the finals to be held then as a feature of American Education Week. The George Washington Commemorative Medal in silver and bronze will be awarded first and second place winners of the declamatory contest.

The essays received by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission have come from all parts of the country, with the far western states making perhaps the best showing in point of participation. For only four states west of the Mississippi River failed to take part.

Speaking of the Bicentennial essay contest, Congressman Bloom, Associate Director of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, said: "I have read some of the essays submitted for prize awards, and I can assure any doubting American, if there is one, that the knowledge, the understanding, the affection for Washington displayed in these youthful attempts is nothing short of inspiring."

The reaction throughout the country has been highly favorable to the contest. Educators all over the nation have expressed appreciation for the benefits which the participating students have received from it. Figures from all the states are not yet available, but from California alone it is reported that 565,500 high school students prepared papers on some phase of George Washington's life. The study necessitated to prepare these essays has made the students better acquainted with the Father of His Country than they have ever been before.

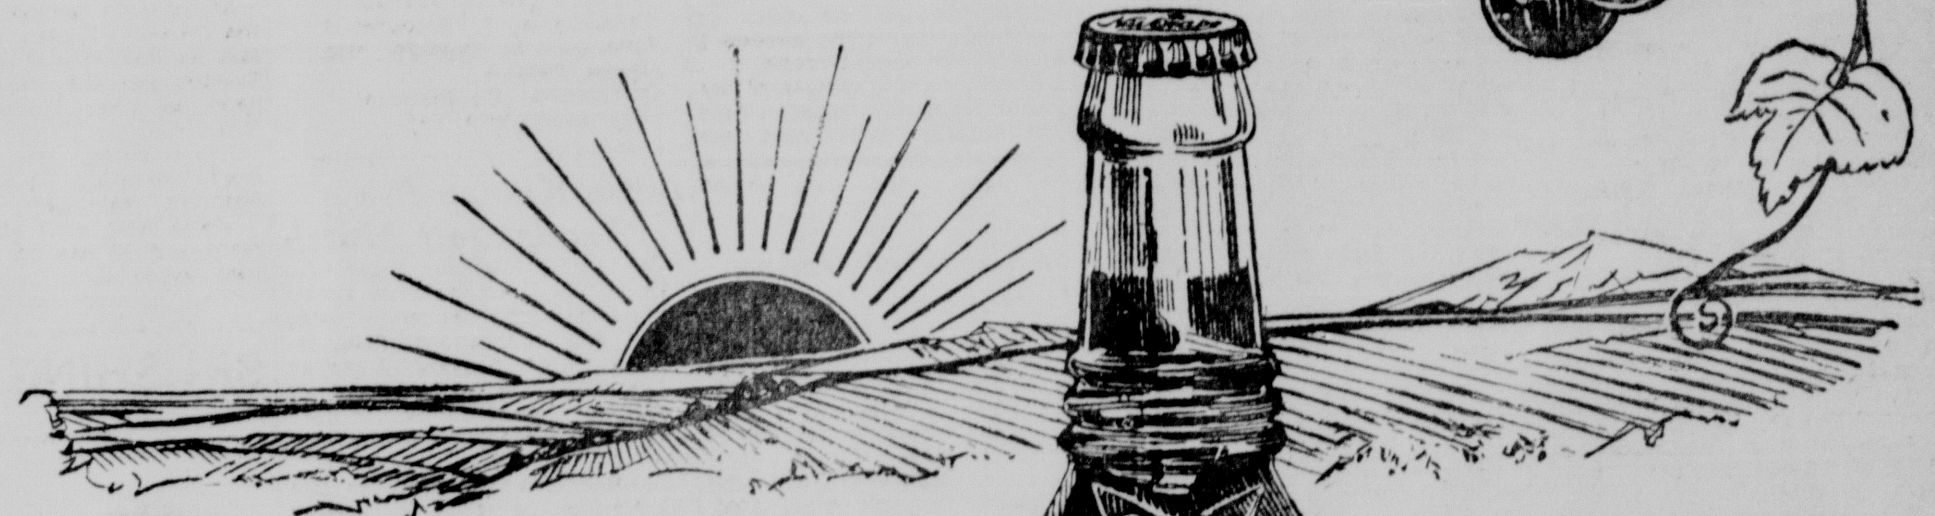

Eight subjects were named by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission from which the students might choose any one they wish to discuss. Every topic is represented in the prize winning essays from which the national winner is to be selected. Significantly enough, however, the subject upon which most papers were written is "The Many-Sidedness of George Washington."

The jury of awards, which will name the national winner of the essay contest, will consist of five persons. The judges are now being appointed by the United States

THE OLD COUNSELLOR'S COLUMN

"Rediscounting"

The twelve Federal Reserve Banks in the United States are sometimes called "bankers' banks." They derive most of their capital and deposits from the various member banks that make up the Federal Reserve System and carry on their business more with banks than with the public at large.

The Federal Reserve Banks play a vital role in the financial life of the nation since they can influence the supply of available money and credit. They perform this function chiefly through what are known as their rediscount facilities and open market operations.

Let me explain briefly, by means of a rough example, just what is meant by rediscounting "acceptable paper" and the effect of the rediscount rate upon credit. A bank that is a member of the Federal Reserve System, let us say, has made a loan to one of its customers as a result of a purely commercial transaction. The bank holds the customer's note, which satisfies all the necessary requirements of the Federal Reserve Banks to make it eligible and acceptable for rediscount. The customer is paying interest on this short-term note at, say, four per cent. The bank might hold this note until it matures thirty or sixty days hence, but by doing so it ties up a part of its capital for that length of time.

Because of demands being made upon it for credit, and for other reasons, the bank decides not to keep its capital tied up in this note by holding it until it matures. So it takes the customer's note to the Federal Reserve Bank in its district, which rediscounts it—that is, the Federal Reserve Bank makes a loan to the member bank on the strength of the customer's note at a lower interest rate than the bank's own interest rate. At present this is three and one-half per cent for all the Federal Reserve Banks except New York, which has a three per cent rate. This means, of course, that the member bank earns the difference of one-half of one per cent, from which it must deduct charges and expenses.

Actually, the rediscounting of "acceptable paper" is somewhat more complicated than in this simple example, which will, however, serve to illustrate the basic principles at work. It should be obvious how a reduction in the rediscount rate tends to make credit easier. Member banks have added incentive to rediscount "acceptable paper" and thus place themselves in a more liquid position. The lower rediscount rate is also eventually reflected in lower interest rates for commercial borrowing. In contrast, raising the rediscount rate tends to restrict the supply of credit.

Howler monkeys inhabit the tropical jungles of Central America.
Under favorable conditions their roars can be heard at a distance of more than two miles. They howl at the least disturbance and a great deal of the time for no apparent reason at all. The females and young, led by a loud-voiced male, greet the coming of day in a combined chorus that makes the woods ring.
